Day 56 (stop 2 of 2) | 5.2 km (3.2 mi)

What to expect

- Parking: Along Woodford Crescent, plus a large lot at the Woodford Community Hall.
- Road walking: The Main Trail follows the road shoulder in two places, including along Woodford Crescent and a laneway out of the hamlet. Keep Zappy close.
- Main Trail through Woodford: The trail passes a glacial pothole once used as a pioneer lime kiln, a stream that disappears and comes back as a waterfall (best in spring) and the ruins of a pioneer cabin and barn. The trail is rocky, and you may have to cross streams in spring.
- Crevices: The club's loop climbs the escarpment through two narrow crevices that can stay icy into late spring. One writer called a crevice here “a tight squeeze”. The club mentions a bypass side trail around them, which may be easier with a dog.

- Crevice Springs: A 47-acre Bruce Trail Conservancy property with a bridge over a crevice, caves and crevices that stay cool even in a heat wave, and seven springs flowing from the talus slope. The trail climbs back up the talus to the top of the escarpment. In spring, listen for black-throated blue warblers.
- Woodford Escarpment Side Trail: The club's loop uses it to get back to the Main Trail. We found no further description of it.
